

Depth Image Question

What would a range image of this object look like if the sensor was above this part (assuming that lighter means closer)?

