

Simple Detection Question

How can we use the information from the 3 different colour channels to improve change detection?