Background Subtraction Question

When dividing by the background image to compensate for widely varying illumination, we are assuming more than just the background being constant. What else must be constant?